The idea behind it was to draw anything but to ensure that anyone chosen element from the drawing should hold its prominence, that is, should 'Stand Out'. It may be a yellow raincoat amongst the black ones or a red apple amongst others which are green. The students were given the full creative liberty to draw anything and everything and even to use any material. The creative students of RKKGPS added emphasis to that chosen element in their drawings with confident use of colours/pencils.
